

Further media consolidation injures and insults the public interest.
Woe unto those who do not zealously guard that interest and instead allow such consolidation to go forward